

1,000 Children Honor Strangers.
On the second anniversary of the sinking of the Titanic, in which Lord Dunsany and his wife, Ida, perished, a thousand children, mostly from public schools, assembled last night in Hamilton Fish Park, under the auspices of the East Side Protective Association, to honor the memory of those friends of the east side children. Speeches were made, and the evening closed with the "taps" by the bugles of the "police boys" of the association.

"Acid-Mouth" Always Results in Tooth Decay

There's no mystery about the cause of decayed teeth—it's "acid-mouth." As to whether you have "acid-mouth"! Well, authorities believe that 95 out of every 100 have this result of modern, civilized diet.

Pebeco Tooth Paste

is made to give you more than the ordinary "toilet article" dentifrice. It cleans, polishes and whitens. And then—gets at "acid-mouth" and overcomes this "well-nigh universal" cause of decay.

That's why Pebeco is the dentifrice plus. The one preparation we know of that scientifically beautifies the teeth and saves them.

BIRDBOY'S NECK IS WORTH MORE THAN PARK GRASS

Judge Lets Young Aviator Go After He Breaks Rules to Save Life.

Although John Guy Gilpatrick, an eighteen-year-old aviator, broke two laws—a park ordinance and an Aero Club rule—when he descended into Central Park at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon in his fifty-horse-power "war" monoplane, Magistrate McQuade in the Yorkville Court refused today to entertain a complaint against the youth. The Court sent him back to the aviation field at Garden City with the remark that one may choose to break rules rather than one's neck without going to jail.

Young Gilpatrick, a blonde, slender boy, was in court in response to a summons from Policeman McGuire, who was on hand in the park when the aviator gracefully circled to earth. McGuire told the Magistrate that he disliked to summon Gilpatrick, but the rules obliged him to do so.

Gilpatrick told the Court that he went up for a sail yesterday afternoon. When he got up a few thousand feet the motors hummed such a tuneless song that he suddenly decided to drop in on his old friend Capt. Tom Baldwin down at the Oakwood Heights Field on Staten Island. Mindful of the Aero Club rules about flying over cities Gilpatrick said he steered out to Long Island Sound, making the twenty-seven miles from Garden City at a seventy-five-mile an hour speed.

He turned into the East River easily and was whirling along nicely when something went wrong above the Queensborough Bridge. He was then 5,500 feet high. He noticed that a lubricating cock in his cabin had become dislodged and, realizing that his engine would become heated shortly, he looked about to land.

"I had the alternative of coming down in the river with my machine and maybe being able to beat the tide and eddies and reach shore," he said. "I knew I might violate over into Central Park, but in doing so I feared I might forfeit my license, because we are forbidden to sail over cities and I knew that a park rule forbade me landing there. So, Judge, I turned her around in circles until we got down on the grass. I am very sorry about it, but it was accidental."

"That's all right, my boy," said the Magistrate. "No harm's done this time. But be careful for yourself and others. You may go."

ARRESTS TOO SUDDEN FOR CABARET OWNER

He Gets Injunction That Temporarily Saves License—Police System Criticized.

Ex-Alderman Alexander S. Dreacher, as counsel for Morris Schneider, proprietor of a cabaret resort in Bridge street, Brooklyn, got a temporary injunction today from Supreme Court Justice Kelly in Brooklyn restraining State Excise Commissioner Farley from revoking Schneider's license. The injunction, if sustained, will necessitate a change in the old system of getting excise evidence.

The law requires a single conviction of the proprietor, but two convictions of employees as a necessary preliminary to the revocation of an excise license. As in Schneider's case, it has been customary for the police to get evidence against and arrest two employees on the same night, contending, if their prosecution be successful, that this constitutes two convictions.

Justice Kelly agreed with Dreacher that the purpose of the law was to provide, in the first arrest, a warning to the proprietor, who might be conceived to be ignorant of the violation, so that two arrests on the same night should not be considered to fulfill the requirements of the law.

Old Burglar Gets 20 Years. "I hope you'll sleep well to-night after this," remarked William Hahn, an old-time burglar, after Judge Rosinsky in General Sessions had sentenced him today to serve twenty years in State prison. Hahn was caught with three others in Jacob Mandel's jewelry store, No. 242 Bowery. He is fifty-three years old and has served four terms for burglary, totalling twenty years. He still owes six years of his last sentence, having been liberated after serving ten years of a sixteen year term and must now serve three in addition to the existing twenty. Judge Rosinsky also branded him as an habitual criminal.

DETECTIVES WILL PATROL TO CATCH THIEVES AT WORK

Commissioner Completes Plan to Reorganize the Department Under Rubin.

Commissioner Woods has completed plans for a complete reorganization of the detective system of the department.

The present plan of having detectives assigned to police stations is to be done away with and branches of the Detective Bureau will be established, four in Manhattan and others in the other boroughs. The plainclothes men will be separated from the uniformed department completely.

In the new detective districts the men will be assigned to beats or sections of the city permanently or until they become known to the crooks. The idea is to have each detective become familiar with his beat and get to know the people—especially the bad ones. A number of men will be kept at the branch bureaus to attend to minor complaints. This plan will put about seventy-five men to work now who have soft snaps in the stations.

The old squad system will also be revived. There will be a homicide squad, an Italian squad, pickpocket, waterfront and shoplifting squads. Mr. Woods will make a large increase in the plainclothes force, and he hopes to get a detective patrol system that will cut down the number of burglaries. His idea is that a plainclothes man on a beat would have a better chance of following and capturing thieves than the uniform man could possibly hope to have.

PROF. JEPSON IN CELL

Yale's Organist and His Wife Arrested by Mistake.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 15.—News was received here today that Prof. Harry Jepson, Yale's organist and the head of the music faculty, and his wife were arrested and detained in prison in Rome for twenty-four hours for an alleged theft of jewelry at Taranto. They were kept in separate cells.

The American Vice-Consul obtained their release. They resembled the man and woman under suspicion.

MAYOR UNWILLINGLY VETOS MARKET BILL

Says Solution It Proposes Has Merit—Signs "Height of Buildings" Bill.

Although he is heartily in favor of the general plan proposed therein, the Mayor has vetoed what is known as the Market bill. He announced his decision last night, at the same time making public a letter from Cyrus C. Miller, who had much to do with forming the market plan, but who agreed with the Mayor that the measure, as passed, had best be vetoed.

The bill sought to establish department markets and provided for at least one wholesale market in each borough. In his memorandum on the bill the Mayor says:

"I disapprove this bill with the greatest reluctance. There is great merit in the solution it proposes for a settlement of the market problem and the consequent reduction of the unnecessarily high cost of food. But some opposition to the measure having developed in the Board of Estimate it was agreed that the bill would be drawn in such form as to be permissive and not mandatory. There is ground for belief that the courts would construe the measure as mandatory."

The Mayor signed the so-called "Height of Buildings" bill, though he is by no means sure it is constitutional.
